HONOLULU MAY HEAR MISS PHOEBE ARLEIGH, HARPIST

Honolulu music lovers may have an opportunity, later this year, of hearing Miss Phoebe Arleigh, the young harpist who has come so far toward winning a name among the best harp players of the world. She with her teacher, Miss Maud Morgan, are arranging a series of concerts to be given in the Western States, and an attempt is being made to include Honolulu in the itinerary.

During the past year, Miss Arleigh has appeared at a number of concerts given in New York and has received very complimentary mention for her musical ability after each event. She spent the greater part of her early girlhood in Honolulu, where she still has many acquaintances and friends, as it is only a few years ago that she left here with her father, a retired Honolulu business man, to make her home in New York.

Some time after going East she enrolled as a pupil of Miss Morgan, the celebrated teacher and player of the harp. Her mastery of this instrument is shown by the comments of the musical critics of the New York papers. After she had played with Miss Morgan and other pupils at a concert arranged by Mrs. Wm. K. Vanderbilt as a benefit for a mission society in New York, the New York Press made the following comment:

"Beyond a doubt, the majority of the women present—there were only a few men—enjoyed to its fullest, a really remarkable performance. The harp is an instrument so seldom heard in solo music, there was delightful novelty in discovering it has powers as sure as those of Orpheus' lyre. And the eye was almost as well served as the ear, by the spectacle of Miss Morgan and the four white-robed maids bending daintily over the big silvered instruments."

"There were ten numbers on the program. * * * The sorrowful strains of the 'Minstrel's Lament,' by Thomas, gave Miss Phoebe Arleigh, eldest of Miss Morgan's quartet, her chance to convince the top of the harp's melodious message."

The New York American was less reserved but not so definite in its compliment of Miss Arleigh's playing:

"One only had to listen to the 'Minstrel's Lament,' arranged from a Welsh song to imagine some lord would walk into the great Vanderbilt banquet hall and tell the story of the big stained-glass window at one end of the apartment, the meeting of Henry VIII. of England and Francis I. of France on the Field of the Cloth of Gold."
